

In the shadow of crumbling towers and fleeting eclipses, the world finds strength—not in what falls, but in what rises: voices of the weary, hands of the helpers, and hearts that still dare to dream.

1 Bangkok Skyscraper Falls in Earthquake, Killing 50 and Angering Locals

- A massive 6.8-magnitude earthquake shakes Bangkok, causing a 40-story building under construction to collapse like a house of cards. At least 50 workers and nearby residents die, and hundreds are hurt. Rescue teams dig through rubble while people point fingers at a Chinese company, saying they used cheap materials. Thailand's government promises a full investigation as anger spreads.

2 Trump Warns Iran: 'We'll Bomb You' Over Missile Moves

- President Donald Trump grabs headlines by threatening to bomb Iran after U.S. spy planes spot missiles being loaded onto launchers. He's furious, saying Iran's testing his patience while they dodge tough U.S. sanctions. Iran claims it's just defending itself, but tensions are sky-high, and the world's watching to see if this turns into a bigger fight.

3 French Far-Right Boss Marine Le Pen Awaits Court's Big Decision

- In Paris, a judge decides if Marine Le Pen, leader of the far-right National Rally, is guilty of stealing millions in public money. She and 24 party pals allegedly used fake jobs to pocket cash meant for EU work. If she loses, her dream of running France could crash hard—everyone's glued to the news for the verdict.

4 MLB Drama: Cubs Battle Athletics in Nail-Biting Opener

- Baseball fans go wild as the Chicago Cubs face the Oakland Athletics at Sutter Health Park. Star player Kyle Tucker's back from a knee injury, swinging for the Cubs, but both teams are hungry to shake off recent losses. The stands are packed, and every pitch has people on edge—it's a classic spring showdown!

5 Myanmar Earthquake Leaves 1,600 Dead, Cities in Ruins

- A monster 7.7-magnitude earthquake hits Sagaing, Myanmar, flattening homes, bridges, and schools. Over 1,600 people are confirmed dead, and the number keeps climbing as rescuers pull bodies from the wreckage. Roads are blocked, power's out, and help from other countries is just starting to roll in—it's a heartbreaking mess.

6 FIFA Might Pit LAFC Against Club América for World Cup Glory

- Soccer's big bosses at FIFA are scratching their heads after Mexico's León gets disqualified from the 2025 Club World Cup over ownership drama. Now, they're thinking of a one-game showdown between Los Angeles FC and Club América to snag the open spot. Fans are buzzing—could this be a new way to pick champs?

7 Trump Floats a Third Term Idea, and America Freaks Out

- At a flashy event in West Palm Beach, President Trump steps off Air Force One and casually says he might run for a third term. The U.S. Constitution says two terms max, so his fans cheer while critics scream about breaking rules. Lawyers and pundits are already fighting over what it all means.

8 Bengaluru FC Crushes Mumbai City 5-0, Fans Go Wild

- In India's ISL playoffs, Bengaluru FC unleashes a 5-0 beatdown on Mumbai City FC. Soccer legend Sunil Chhetri scores a stunner, and the team's defense is rock-solid. The win locks them into a semifinal showdown with FC Goa—supporters flood the streets, chanting for a championship run.

9 World Backup Day Warns: Hackers Are Everywhere

- It's March 31, World Backup Day, and tech experts are sounding the alarm: save your stuff! With ransomware attacks doubling this year, they say one click on a bad link could wipe out your photos, work, or business. People worldwide are rushing to back up files to avoid becoming the next victim.

10 Elon Musk's Crypto Company Bags $500 Million, Critics Cry Foul

- Elon Musk and the Trump family's World Liberty Financial rakes in over $500 million from investors excited about their new cryptocurrency push. It's a wild success, but some say it's a shady deal that only helps Musk's inner circle. Social media's buzzing with hype and suspicion.

11 Gold and Silver Skyrocket as World Gets Scarier

- Gold and silver prices shoot up on March 31, with buyers rushing to grab them like lifeboats in a storm. Wars, shaky economies, and big headlines are spooking people, and experts at Kitco News say it's a sign everyone's betting on tough times ahead.

12 Ukraine's War-Weary Towns Face Another Grim Year

- The Russia-Ukraine war hits its fourth year, and frontline villages are barely hanging on. Families mourn fresh losses as a shaky ceasefire starts to crack—soldiers spot Russian tanks moving again. People there say they're tired but won't give up, even as hope feels far away.

13 Shillong Teer Lottery Winners Cash In on Lucky 23

- In Meghalaya, India, the Shillong Teer lottery announces its winners, and number 23 takes the top prize in the first round. This archery game's a local obsession—players shoot arrows, bettors guess the hits, and today's champs walk away grinning with cash. Tourists love it too!

14 Solar Eclipse Leaves Scientists Stunned by Weird Weather

- After the March 29 solar eclipse darkened parts of the Northern Hemisphere, researchers are geeking out over what it did to the air. Temperatures dropped, winds shifted, and strange clouds popped up. On March 31, they're still crunching data, saying it's a rare peek at how the sun messes with Earth.

15 Napoli Sneaks Past Milan 2-1 in Soccer Showdown

- In Italy's Serie A, Napoli pulls off a thrilling 2-1 win over AC Milan on March 30. A last-minute goal seals it after a back-and-forth battle that has fans screaming. The victory shakes up the leaderboard, and Napoli's players are already talking championship dreams.

16 Eid-ul-Fitr Kicks Off with Joy and Confusion Over Moon Sighting

- Muslims worldwide start celebrating Eid-ul-Fitr on March 31, a major holiday marking the end of Ramadan. In India, the UK, and Europe, people spot the new Shawwal moon and dive into feasts and prayers. But there's a twist—Saudi Arabia said they saw it a day earlier, so some countries celebrated on March 30 instead. This mix-up has folks online arguing about who got it right!